

Berkeley Earth Day
Saturday April 19, 2008
Government Agency Information

Dear Government Agency:

I am writing to invite you and your organization to participate in the 38th annual Berkeley Earth Day sponsored by the City of Berkeley. Last year's attendance was around 5,000 folks with lots of families and kids attending.

Berkeley has a reputation for our environmentally conscious citizenry. Berkeley Earth Day will be the perfect opportunity to take action locally on the environmental issues that affect our community, our pocketbooks, and our daily activities.

Berkeley Earth Day, slated for Saturday, April 19 from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m. downtown in Civic Center Park, will combine cultural performances and speakers on a wide range of environmental issues.

Also featured are:

- Kid's Eco-art making area coordinated by the East Bay Depot for Creative Reuse
- Over 150 booths representing businesses, craftspeople, community organizations, food vendors and government groups
- Demonstrations of alternative energy including electric cars, strawbale structures, hemp products, solar panels
- Berkeley Farmer's Market with mostly organic farmers
- Climbing Wall

We have high expectations for this year's Earth Day event and truly hope you can be a part of it. Please print and fill out the government agency application and send it in by April 1. Booth space is limited. Set-up is from 9-11 a.m. and the fair is from 12 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Best Regards,

Karen Hester, Berkeley Earth Day Coordinator
